Good morning

This email updates you on the timing for our notice of intention to commence the IM review and the dates for the forum.

In our email update of 7 May 2015, we introduced the idea of holding a forum to provide an early opportunity for interested parties and us to discuss the most significant issues for the IM review. We have now scheduled the forum for 29 -30 July 2015 in Wellington.

In our previous email update, we also mentioned that we are working on a notice of intention to commence the IM review. We now aim to release the notice next week.

Shortly after issuing the notice of intention, we plan to release a paper inviting you to contribute to defining the problems to be addressed by the review. This was referred to in our previous email update as a preliminary issues paper. This paper will provide further details of the forum. It will also invite written submissions on the problems to be addressed by the review, which will not be due until after you have had the opportunity to discuss your views at the forum.

Kind regards

Keston Ruxton
