The Commerce Commission has today published papers relating to our final decisions for the fibre input methodologies (excluding the financial loss asset).

Documents released today

We have released the following documents today:

- Commerce Commission - Fibre input methodologies: Main final decisions - reasons paper – 13 October 2020.
- Commerce Commission – Fibre input methodologies – final determination – 13 October 2020
- CEPA – Cost of capital for regulated fibre telecommunication services in New Zealand: Response to submissions on the Input Methodologies Draft Decision – 6 July 2020 (published 13 October 2020)

You can find these documents on our Fibre Input Methodologies project page HERE.

Remaining decisions on financial loss asset and timing of gazette notice

We are planning to publish the remaining final input methodologies relating to the financial loss asset on 3 November 2020, along with an amendment to the determination to include provisions relating to the initial value of the financial loss asset.

Under section 184(1) of the Telecommunications Act 2001, an appeal of an IM determination brought under section 183(1) must be brought within 20 working days after the date on which public notice of the IM is given.

We are conscious that some parties may want to review the 3 November 2020 amended determination regarding the financial loss asset before reaching a decision on whether to bring an appeal of the IM determination being made today.

To maximise the period available to parties to consider both determinations before deciding on an appeal, we will delay giving public notice of the determination being made today until the deadline provided for in section 180(1)(a). The determination being made today will be notified in the Gazette on Wednesday, 28 October 2020.

We would like to thank everyone who has participated in our process for setting the first input methodologies for fibre.

Ngā mihi
